Candidates for Public Service Commission:

The Montana Public Service Commission (PSC) is an elected state level body that regulates the rates and service quality for investor-owned electric, natural gas, water, waste-water, and legacy telecommunication companies.

District 1

Randy Pinocci (R)

Pinocci is skeptical of climate change and spreads inflammatory, anti-climate rhetoric on social media. He opposes meaningful climate solutions and supports policies with destructive impacts on the climate.

District 5

John Repke (D)

Throughout his career Repke has devoted time to environmental organizations in Montana dedicated to protecting wild places, but he does not acknowledge climate action as a priority in his campaign.

Ann Bukacek (R)

Bukacek fails to acknowledge climate change is a problem and does not prioritize climate solutions in her campaign. Although she supports research and development for carbon capture and nuclear energy, Bukacek criticizes solar, wind, and other renewable energy sources as well as electric vehicles.
